

NEO Hosting Genealogical Seminar

MIAMI, Okla. — Northeastern Oklahoma A&M College will host a genealogical seminar Saturday in the Cunningham Hall Little Theater from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Guest speaker conducting the seminar will be Ann Gregath, director of the Genealogical Department at Wallace State College, Hanceville, Ala.

Hosting the seminar for NEO will be the college's Genealogical Events Coordinator Fredrea Cook, Miami, who conducts genealogical classes at the college.

Appropriately, for a seminar on family histories, the event is something of a family mini-reunion for the leading participants. Mrs. Cook is Mrs. Gregath's daughter.

"Southeastern Research and Publishing" will be the seminar's topic, concentrating on genealogical research archives and resources in the southeastern United States. A segment on "Publishing Profitably" will deal with the organization and preparation of materials and the economics of successfully publishing genealogical research.

Mrs. Gregath has over 25 years experience in the field of genealogy, and has lectured throughout the United States, Europe and the Caribbean. She is owner of the Gregath Co., which specializes in the publication of genealogical and regional history materials. She has written and published 24 books of her own and has served as advisor and publisher for numerous other authors in the genealogical field.

She is the originator of the Classroom on Wheels Program which includes student travel to major historic localities, archives and record repositories in America and abroad.

Special certificates will be awarded those attending the seminar. Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. Those who have not pre-enrolled will be accepted as long as seating is available.

Globe Photo/GARY GARTON

ANN GREGATH, LEFT, AND DAUGHTER FREDREA COOK
... review genealogical materials at Miami Public Library